A Christmas Introduction

By Florence Harris Wells

PETER MANLEY, the mail carrier, looked at the gay red letter he was delivering at the door of Miss Waters' apartment two days before Christmas. Miss Waters had requested that Peter leave her mail on the table by her door. Peter did so. He silently adored the trim, competent little seamstress.

Peter couldn't help but read what was on letters and this time it was so surprising Peter fairly gasped; for there in a plain, capable hand were the words, "From P. Manley." This was an opportunity Peter was quick to seize. He knocked briskly on the door. No response. All was perfectly still within. Peter hastily drew an arrow on the envelope pointing to the name and wrote, "This is my name," and signed it, "Your mail carrier." Peter was hopeful it might lead to closer acquaintance; just how he had not exactly figured out.

The next morning Peter ascended the steps to Miss Waters' apartment, his hands full of Christmas letters and his mind and heart eagerly anticipating something, though he didn't know what. But even Peter was unprepared for the door of the apartment being flung open and the little seamstress eagerly confronting him:

"Are you Peter Manley?"

"I'm sure not anybody else," Peter answered breathlessly.

"Were you in the war and did you have a twin brother, Porter?" the little seamstress questioned.

"I sure did," Peter was startled, but he managed to stammer that Porter had been killed in that war.

"But he wasn't killed," Miss Waters insisted. "He was just reported killed. He's married to my sister and he's been trying to find you for years. And here you were bringing my mail all the time. I'm going there for Christmas tomorrow. You must go, too, Peter—Mr. Manley. I'll wire them you are coming;" then she blushed crimson. The little seamstress had allowed her enthusiasm to run away with her for once. But Peter was equal to the occasion:

"I'd be glad to take you in my car, if you'll go, Miss Waters?"

And Miss Waters, who really was very careful of her pennies, murmured: "That would be fine."

All the rest of his route Peter kept saying to himself:

"Two brothers married two sisters and they all were together first on Christmas day," and every one that met Peter that day was hailed with such a "Merry Christmas" as Peter had never shouted at them before.

Mr. and Mrs. Sew and Sow

OF OCEAN BEACH

"Springtime sweet and frosty fall Earth has gardens for us all."

Bill and Betty Seymour, publicity boosters, and formerly owners of the home at 4301 Santa Monica avenue, did much artistic landscaping while they lived there. It will endure for long, for part of their scheme was to leave undisturbed many native bushes and shrubs. The new home of Bill and Betty is in Spring Valley, and is said to be equally attractive amidst its natural settings.

Mr. Walter H. Blake, 4411 Newport avenue, brought home from his recent trip to Washington many seeds, bulbs and young plants, which he has been transplanting to his own garden. He is curious to see how they will take to their new surroundings . . . . . Within his newly enclosed glass front porch Mr. Blake has also placed several rare and beautiful ferns rooted and grown in Washington.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Dunning of 5014 Narragansett avenue with their combined efforts produce the greenest lawn on the street. Mrs. Dunning says it's rye grass. It is the product of patient labor in its even sowing and growing; a soft velvet spot in the midst of drab surrounding vacant lots.

Mrs. Victoria Kunz has owned her home at 4677 Santa Cruz avenue for many years, and she is a deep thoughtful student of nature. Within her own colorful autumn garden she finds the peace and contentment that passes all understanding. "I would rather deprive myself than my garden," she said in her earnest quiet way. "I give and give—and even the poorest shrub receives plenty of water." In each plant and flower she finds a revelation of the wonders of God, and feels herself to be a part of His great garden. Love of nature makes faith inevitable. Mrs. Kunz has started a Lutheran Sunday school in Ocean Beach. Meetings are held in the Woman's club and Mrs. John McAlpine is assisting her.

WED MONDAY EVENING HERE

Monday evening, December 10, at 8 p. m. Miss Frances W. Milbrandt was united in marriage by the Rev. W. S. Dunn to Mr. Elmer E. Ray, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Tanner at 1841 Ebers street. The single ring ceremony was used for the service. Miss Frances Sparks and Herbert Cole Carroll were in attendance.

Miss Milbrandt has many friends here who wish the young folks joy and happiness. She was a student at Point Loma High school and later graduated from the San Diego High.

LIBRARY HEAD TELLS ABOUT LIBRARY ACTIVITIES

Cornelia D. Plaister, in charge of the San Diego City public library, was guest speaker at Kiwanis luncheon Wednesday noon with Rev. James Hughes as chairman for the day.

Miss Plaister gave brief interesting facts about the San Diego library, saying the system was operated largely from tax receipts, the allotment during the past year from this source being approximately $100,000 though with the great demand for books of all descriptions this amount hardly covered the cost, which now ran about $107,000 for the year.

In San Diego she said there are 48 distributing branches, 12 of these being in separately maintained branches by the city and 6 housed in public school buildings. The school system is very considerate in its cooperation with the library, according to the speaker.

Many requests of a wide nature come to the girls at the library and recently it was said one lady called up and asked if she might have the life of Benjamin Franklin read to her over the phone.

At the main library 2,000 to 3,000 requests are made each day for books with a like number at the branches, making the total requests each day in the neighborhood of 5,000 callers.

While formerly the public received books mostly as a pastime and for recreation, recent years have brought a more useful study and now people are asking for books wherein they might turn their particular hobby into a vocation or business to bring a livelihood.

A special point of interest was the fact that when special books are wanted by the customers of the library and these are not contained in the property of this institution that borrowing privilege is maintained with the splendid State library at Sacramento as well as several of those in the larger cities of the east.

Last year one million seven hundred thousand books were taken out by patrons of the San Diego city library system.

Visiting Kiwanians from La Jolla were Earl G. Gildea, Erling Rohde, Captain Messer, Gethin D. Williams and Joe Zarick.

Special Christmas Features Next Week

Our next issue of the Ocean Beach News, for Friday, December 21st, will be a special Christmas number with four pages printed on green paper and a fine large picture of old St. Nicholas on the front page. The four green pages will be in addition to the regular eight page paper and will feature Christmas Greetings from business houses and the business and professional people.

RESIDENT WAR VETERAN PASSED AWAY WEDNESDAY

Clifton W. Soper, 4447 Muir avenue, passed away at 7 a. m. Wednesday, leaving to mourn his loss his widow, Mrs. Mae W. Soper, and three children, Joan 11, Clifford 8, and Dorothy 3, in Ocean Beach, also Margaret Vinton, Seattle Wash.

Mr. Soper was age 60, a native of Galva, Illinois, moving from there to Streator, Ill., where he was a car-checker for many years, until retiring from the railway service. He was a veteran of the Spanish-American war.

The family came to Ocean Beach to reside permanently about 1928, thought deceased had visited here for a number of years previously.

Funeral services will be held Saturday afternoon at 2:30 at Bonham Bros. chapel, E. C. Boyce Frank B. Killiver camp U.S.W.V. in charge. Interment will be in the Spanish-American war veterans Bennington plot in Mount Hope cemetery.

(POINT LOMA HIGH SCHOOL)

With the stage crew working inside auditorium doors firmly locked, the drama students practising, hunting sleigh bells, and what not, we know Christmas, Christmas vacation, and the Christmas play, Dickens's "Christmas Carol", are coming. You will see the lovely cathedral windows designed and executed by the art students under direction of Mrs. Johnson, Ella Cook and Marjorie Linthicum. You will see them to great advantage if you come over some day next week before the play and view them unhurriedly in detail. The art windows remind us of Keats' famous line

"A thing of beauty is a joy forever."

A week from today on December 21, the glee clubs will sing carol in the following schedule:

Leave Point Loma High	at 6 p. m.
County Hospital	at 6:15 p. m.
Mercy Hospital	at 6:45 p. m.
Mr. Ross' home	at 7:15 p. m.
Naval Hospital	at 7:45 p. m.
Plaza	at 8:15 p. m.
Marine Base	at 9:00 p. m.

The committee in charge of this Christmas carol singing is Helen Burke, Fred Strohte, Kenneth Hall, Lucille Neumont, Katherine Wilson. The City Manager of San Diego has arranged for a motorcycle escort for the carol singers.

On Tuesday, Dec. 11, Mrs. James Wallace addressed the ninth grade and senior high school on the problems of conduct that face a student today. With humor, pathos, and common sense Mrs. Wallace made a stirring appeal to boys and girls to make the most of their time to learn things, to face moral issues squarely, and to form healthful boy and girl friendships.

The enrollment of Point Loma High is steadily increasing. The following students have entered recently: Beverly Adams, Encinitas; Kenneth Reidy, El Centro; Priscilla Methvin, Newport, R. I.; Miriam Mullen, Falmouth, Mass.; Robert Jackson, Great Lakes, Minn.; Wm. Griffin, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Thelma Brown and Boyce Mayer, both from San Diego High.

——PLHS——

After school takes up on January 7 following the Christmas vacation, the Loman basketball team will set to work to make a good showing among the San Diego county schools. The following is the schedule for the season:

Jan. 11—Escondido at Pt. Loma
Jan. 18—Sweetwater at Pt. Loma
Jan. 25—Pt. Loma at La Jolla
Feb. 1 —Pt. Loma at Grossmont
Feb. 8 —A. & N. Academy at Pt. Loma.
Feb. 15—Pt. Loma at Oceanside
Feb. 22—Coronado at Pt. Loma

——PLHS——

The armory for the storage of the R. O. T. C. rifles is practically finished. The boys hope to get their guns before the Christmas vacation, but it is not likely that these will be sent out to Point Loma High till January altho the uniforms may be issued before that time.

MERCHANTS BALL TEAM PLAY WINTER'S BAKERY HERE SUN.

Members of the Ocean Beach Merchants ball team wish to thank those merchants who donated prizes for the ball teams' dance held on Nov. 30, and also want to thank those who helped to make the dance a success.

The fact that it rained last Sunday was responsible for the Ocean Beach teams not going to Escondido. This Sunday the team will play Winter's Bakery on our home diamond. The boys expect to appear in their new suits Sunday and a good crowd should be out to see them play.

School Board Favors Collier Park As Site For New School

Monday evening under sponsorship of the Ocean Beach Chamber of Commerce a very well attended meeting was held at the Woman's club, looking to further facilities for the Junior or Senior high school.

In the Loma Alta section is Collier Park, a sixty-acre tract, in which there are only about five acres in use. This property has never been improved by the City Park department and citizens now are desirous of turning the major portion of this property over to the San Diego City school board that they make plans for the construction of another school as soon as money is available. Point Loma High school is now running at beyond its capacity for efficient administration and there will be 85 more pupils enter in January than will graduate from this institution.

In attendance was the entire school board, composed of Dr. Webber, chairman; Mrs. Vesta Muehleisen, Ray Reynolds, O. E. Darnell, Mr. Thompson and the business manager George M. Crawford. A representative of the Woman's club, Ocean Beach PTA and Father's Council, V. F. W., American Legion, Methodist church, Point Loma High PTA, Ocean Beach Kiwanis club, and the principals of Ocean Beach school and Point Loma high school.

Albert Dumont gave a brief description as to the location of Collier park, the proposed site for a new Junior high school, followed by Ed Hastings who told of the need now, the central location for this project and of the decided advantage in securing this property as soon as possible, so that title might be in possession of the School Board when they found it advantageous to start construction of a new unit to take care of the ever increasing number of pupils who are coming to this section.

Dr. Webber speaking for himself personally and not as chairman of the school board stated that he had visited the Collier park site and was highly pleased with the location. He also stated that he was in favor of the school board acquiring the property just as soon as possible, that the growth of Point Loma High school had been such that there was not sufficient room on the property owned there, and that he would be in favor of developing this new site gradually as one for the high school. He classed the site as an ideal and beautiful one.

Mr. Darnell spoke in favor of acquiring the proposed site and suggested the appointment of two committees, one composed of the citizens interested and one committee from the school board to study the matter more closely.

Ray Reynolds told of some of the present problems of the School board but believed the property should be acquired so that when funds were available a junior high school could be built.

Mr. Thompson had not visited the site and knowing it was fairly close to Mission bay asked in regard to drainage, which problem was explained to his satisfaction.

Walter Vye, representing Point Loma High PTA, said that the Point Loma section had always been neglected by the school authorities, and that while they talked of having no funds or money with which to construct new buildings and give this section advantages that are enjoyed by other section of San Diego, he believed it was time the people here stood up and demanded better educational facilities than they now have.

The school board before leaving made arrangements to visit the site during the week and go over same in company with Albert Dumont and Dr. H. E. Bailey. They also planned to have a survey made of the section from which all pupils come to Point Loma High so that if a more advantageous location may be had it will have full consideration.

Clarence Swenson, principal of Point Loma High, asked for his opinion as to facilities needed, said it was imperative that very soon accommodations be made for the 7th graders and this would take about six class rooms, this would be a good start for the first year as one unit, then accommodations be made the second year of construction for a like unit for the 8th graders and the third year a like unit for the 9th grade.

If we can secure this construction during the next four years it is believed by some that high school enrollment will increase at a pace that all facilities at Point Loma high will be needed for the three higher grades.

Rudolph Nagel, president, thanked the school board for their attendance and their consideration in giving Ocean Beach the much needed addition to the elementary school, at a cost of $45,000, during the past summer.

Richmond Barbour, principal of Ocean Beach elementary school, invited all in attendance to a week of dedication and celebration set for January 14th to 18th.

MacMarr Store Manager Beaten By Holdups.

Jake Watson, manager of the MacMarr store at Voltaire and Cable street, met with thugs last Saturday night and came out of the fracas badly beaten up but his assailants failed to get the store keys they were apparently seeking that they might get into the store and rifle or cart away the safe containing receipts for Saturday's business.

Mr. Watson keeps his auto in a garage near the back of the store and after he backed out and stepped out of his car to lock the garage, he was set upon by two thugs. A hard blow on the head almost knocked Jake unconscious but he grabbed one man by the face and arm, wresting from the fellow his gun, but all this time the other thug was beating Watson over the head and shoulders from behind. The fight lasted for quite several minutes, Watson doing his best to hold onto the one man but the two were too much for him. The attempted hold-up was between 10:30 and 11 p. m. Watson received hospital attention following the fracas, Dr. Eby taking ten stitches in the scalp where the flesh was laid open, the injured man also suffered a badly beaten face, head and shoulders.

Officers found a large iron tire wrench that was used by the assailants, and on the ground was quite a number of shells from an automatic pistol which are believed to have dropped from the second man's gun while he was beating Watson.

Jake has been confined to his home this week, but is improving and hopes to be back on duty by next Monday.

The citizen and taxpayer must use every effort to help stop crime, its cost is enormous. The total governmental cost of crime in California in 1931 was over thirty million dollars, or 6.5 percent of the total cost of government. Depredations of organized crime can be met only by vigorous and coordinated opposition on the part of the law enforcement agencies with the assistance of every law-abiding citizen, then a swifter and more certain administration of justice, with no sympathy or parole a few months after the crime has been perpetrated.

Universal finger-printing will naturally act as a deterent but until our courts are more severe and our parole boards more strict, there will be just as much crime as ever.

MORE WAR CLOUDS GATHERING OVER EUROPE—INSULL AND AIDES ARE ACQUITTED.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

©, Western Newspaper Union.

LEON ARCHIMBAUD, French reporter of the budget, declared before the chamber of deputies that it was undeniable that an understanding exists between France and Russia, and that the Soviet government had offered armed aid to France in case of a conflict with Germany. This caused great excitement and the French office contented itself with a denial that there was any military accord. The Russian offer was generally believed to have been made by Maxim Litvinov, Russian foreign commissar, last spring to the late Louis Barthou and again to his successor, Pierre Laval. Col. Jean Fabry, former French minister of war, gave support to Archimbaud's statement by asserting that France's knowledge of German rearmament, the details of German troops and information concerning the secret manufacture of arms and airplanes in the reich was supplied by Russia. The two men were arguing for a large war budget, and Archimbaud pictured Russia's huge military machine working with France as the only means of preserving peace in Europe.

Col. Jean Fabry

FRANCE is worried by the admitted fact that Germany has developed a military air fleet of considerable size, composed of modern pursuit and bombing planes, and Gen. Victor Renain, French minister of air, estimates that by January the reich will have from 1,000 to 1,100 of these machines, swifter and better than those possessed by France. Consequently he has asked the chamber of deputies for about $230,000,000 to finance a program for recovering the ground lost by French aviation. The task is already under way, $32,500,000 having been spent out of an appropriation for modernization.

AGAIN it may be said that if or when another European war breaks out, it will start among the southern nations. The blaze lighted by the assassinations of King Alexander and Louis Barthou in Marseilles is still smoldering. Jugoslavia's delegates in the League of Nations formally charged Hungary with complicity in the murder of the king, asserting she had harbored Balkan terrorists. Hungary demanded immediate action by the league's council on this accusation, declaring "the peace of the world" might be affected. The Hungarian note asked that the matter be placed on the agenda of the council's session called to meet on December 3 to discuss the forthcoming plebiscite in the Saar, so that Hungary might "defend its honor against proceedings which have no other purpose than to compromise the good name of the whole Hungarian nation."

The document then pointed out that the council, under Article IV of the covenant of the league, may deal with any question affecting the peace of the world.

It is, therefore, the duty of the council to face this question as soon as possible, it asserted, "and thus guard against the grave dangers which might arise from the situation that Hungary is still bound to bring to the attention of the council."

The Jugoslavian charges were supported by the other two states of the little entente, Czechoslovakia and Rumania.

Italy, which has stood by Hungary, was expected to refuse to grant extradition to France of Dr. Ante Pavelich, alleged leader of the gang that planned and carried out the assassination of King Alexander. The court of appeals at Turin denied the application of France, and it was believed the minister of justice would confirm this ruling. Mussolini's paper, Il Popolo d'Italia, in an article supposedly inspired by Il Duce himself, said Jugoslavia's accusations against Hungary threaten to destroy all possibilities of calming Europe's clashing passions.

HUGH R. WILSON, American ambassador to Switzerland, laid before the disarmament conference in Geneva a proposal by the United States for international control of arms traffic and full publicity to prevent secret arming of nations. The proposal was well received by most of the delegates, and it will be studied by committees in January.

By the American plan each government would license its manufacturers of munitions for five-year periods. No reserve stocks would be allowed and manufacturers would be required to present bona fide orders before receiving a license. Details of war vessels built for other nations would have to be reported. Reports of licenses and orders would be turned over to a central committee at Geneva and made a matter of public record. A permanent commission, including a member from each signatory nation, would be empowered to investigate transactions.

THERE is bound to be another hot fight in the senate over the revamped St. Lawrence waterway treaty, but it looks now as if President Roosevelt were justified in his expectation that the treaty will be ratified. Senator James Hamilton Lewis of Illinois, leader of the opposition that defeated the pact in the last session, said in Washington that he had heard rumors that some major provisions involved in the controversy had been eliminated in a new treaty with Canada that is being negotiated. The omitted provisions, he understood, have to do with the American share of the cost of the seaway and limitations on the diversion of water from Lake Michigan for the Chicago drainage canal. He added rumor also had it that the new pact would acknowledge complete American sovereignty over Lake Michigan.

The Chicago Association of Commerce urges Senators Lewis and Dieterich to continue their opposition to the proposed treaty, saying in part:

"The apprehension we have felt toward the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence waterway treaty is not based entirely upon selfish interest. While we insist that article VIII has no place in the treaty because of the unfair penalties it imposes upon Chicago and the state of Illinois, we also see that realization of the larger picture of a greater and more prosperous valley would be immeasurably impeded should the treaty in its present form be approved by the senate."

The St. Lawrence treaty was one of the live topics discussed in the annual convention of the Mississippi Valley association in St. Louis.

UNCLE SAM has had plenty of trouble with his "colonial" possessions and very small satisfaction from most of them. Now comes Admiral Richard E. Byrd with the announcement from Little America, Antarctica, that he has claimed for the United States an area nearly as large as the state of Texas, as a result of his south polar discoveries.

A huge stretch of ice-covered Antarctic wastes, which previously had been considered to be over water, was said by Byrd to be land. He made this announcement in a radio message to President Roosevelt following a flight east into Marie Byrd Land. He brought back with him conclusive evidence that Marie Byrd Land runs in an unbroken line from the Antarctic coast to the South pole, and that a transatlantic strait does not exist. Byrd declared it is all land, "overwhelmed by ice."

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S power program, as set forth in the Tennessee Valley authority and similar projects, is attacked by the Edison Electric institute, which threatens to carry to the courts the matter of the legality of the TVA. This institute is an association that includes about 80 per cent of the country's electric power interests. Its president, Thomas N. McCarter, said that he had obtained from Newton D. Baker and James M. Beck a joint legal opinion declaring the TVA legislation to be "palpably unconstitutional."

In one of the resolutions adopted by the institute's board of trustees, the administration was accused inferentially of "using public funds to destroy by competitive construction and operation the existing investments of private capital in public utility enterprises."

The institute officers were empowered to take "any necessary steps" to bring about "a prompt adjudication and settlement of the matters in controversy."

SAMUEL INSULL and his sixteen co-defendants in the great mail fraud trial in Chicago were acquitted by the jury, despite the long work of the government officials in preparing and presenting the case at an estimated cost of $100,000. The verdict was reached on the third ballot, and the attorneys for the prosecution could say only that they had done their best. It was apparent that the jurors were not convinced that Insull and his aides had an intent to defraud. There are other charges standing against Insull, but whether or not there will be further prosecution is undecided. Insull said:

Samuel Insull

"I am ready to face these other trials that are pending. I have been vindicated in this case and I am confident that I will be vindicated in the others."

There were rumors that the former magnate, if cleared of all charges, planned to re-enter La Salle street and the utilities field.

ORGANIZED labor demands a 30-hour week, but the NRA supervisors of manufacturing codes have drafted recommendations for a uniform 40-hour week, feeling that what union labor wants is impossible of achievement without pushing prices so high that consumption would be seriously curtailed. The recommendations were to go first to the recovery board and then to the President for his use in dealing with congress.

IN ITS review of current conditions, the United States Chamber of Commerce says that business is gradually improving, and would be expanding even more substantially were it not for hampering effects of the New Deal.

Issuance of obligations aggregating hundreds of millions of dollars is being held back, the chamber finds, by these two conditions:

1. Monopoly of the long-term investment market by federal government and municipal borrowings.

2. The great expense to which issuers of securities are put to comply with the requirements of the securities act.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT is reveling in baths and rest at Warm Springs, Ga., but he is not neglecting the nation's business, keeping in close touch with Washington and receiving many official visitors. At his first press conference there he announced with glad smiles that he would again "lend his birthday," January 30, to the national committee that arranges birthday balls all over the country for the benefit of infantile paralysis sufferers.

COMPTROLLER GENERAL J. R. M'CARL has thrown a monkey-wrench into part of the machinery of Relief Administrator Harry L. Hopkins. Turning down a check from Hopkins to the officials of the District of Columbia which was to have started work on a housing development, Mr. McCarl held that the federal emergency relief act, providing for the granting of funds for various relief purposes, could not apply to the acquisition of real estate and the construction of homes. This type of activity, he said, would be of a permanent and not an emergency nature, and the act was adopted to meet emergencies.

The FERA already has under way a program of "rehabilitating" 80,000 farm families in homes and on land which is to be sold to them by the government.

SOBER minded American citizens find it difficult to take seriously the fantastic story that Maj. Gen. Smedley D. Butler told to the congressional committee investigating un-American activities. This retired officer of marines charges that there is a plot, engineered by Wall Street men, to seize the government of the United States and set up a Fascist dictatorship, and the chairman of the committee, Representative John W. McCormack of New York, considered the tale of enough importance to warrant the calling of witnesses to prove or disprove it. General Butler made his story public through the columns of the New York Evening Post, as the proceedings of the committee are conducted in private.

Gen. Smedley D. Butler

If Butler is to be believed, he was approached by Gerald P. MacGuire, bond salesman in the stock exchange firm of Grayson M. P. Murphy and company, and urged to accept the leadership of a soldier organization of half a million men "which would assemble—probably a year from now—in Washington, and that within a few days it could take over the functions of the government." MacGuire, according to the general, thought the overturn of the government might be accomplished peacefully and suggested that "we might even go along with Roosevelt and do with him what Mussolini did with the king of Italy."

"He told me he believed that at least half of the American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars would follow me.

"MacGuire explained to me that they had two other candidates for the position of 'Man on the White Horse.' He said that if I did not accept, an offer would be made to Gen. Douglas MacArthur, chief of staff of the United States army, and that the third choice would be Hanford MacNider, former commander of the American Legion.

"So far as I know, neither General MacArthur nor MacNider has been approached. Their names were merely mentioned as 'alternates.'"

The general said he was offered considerable sums "for expenses" which he did not accept. He said MacGuire intimated that among the backers of the plan were Mr. Murphy and Col. Robert S. Clark, a wealthy New Yorker with offices in the Stock Exchange building; and he added that later Colonel Clark offered him money to go to the American Legion convention in Chicago last year and make a speech for retention of the gold standard, which speech MacGuire had previously given Butler.

Clark, at present in France, admitted he had asked Butler "to use his influence in favor of sound money and against inflation," but strongly denied that he had sponsored a Fascist movement.

Murphy and other Wall Street men said the story was absolutely false and unutterably ridiculous, and MacGuire, after being heard by the McCormack committee, said: "It's a joke—a publicity stunt. I know nothing about it. The matter is made out of whole cloth. I deny the story completely."

SO FAR as the great steel industry is concerned, it appears that the industrial truce asked by President Roosevelt cannot be arranged, and the prospect of a strike of the steel workers is growing.

In behalf of the United States Steel corporation, a proposal was made to the American Federation of Labor that recognition of that organization would be granted, but that no contract would be made. This proposal, it was said, would be agreed to by 85 per cent of the steel industry.

The labor spokesmen, led by William Green, president of the A. F. of L., rejected the tender on the ground that it was hedged about in such a way to permit collective bargaining with minority groups or company unions, and that the employers were still unwilling to accept the principle of majority rule as set forth in the national labor relations board's decision in the Houde case.

If a rupture comes the Federation of Labor may find the federal government rather unsympathetic. Mr. Green's influence in the White House has been waning noticeably and he has had no personal contacts with the President for some time.

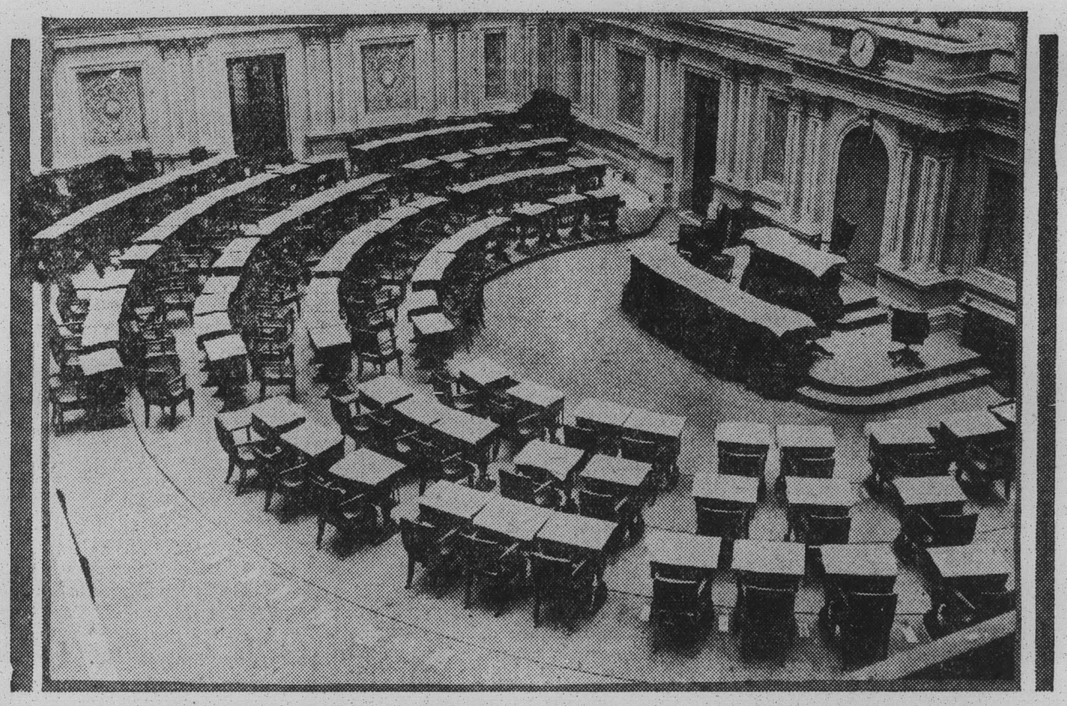
No "Cherokee Strip" in the Senate Chamber



Seats in the senate chamber in Washington have been changed around so that new Democratic senators will not have to sit on the side occupied by the minority party. For a time it was thought that the old "Cherokee strip," that is, a row of seats in the rear of the Republican section, would have to be employed, but the shifting has obviated the necessity of doing that.

FAST FLYER

Capt. F. C. Nelson of the army air corps won the Mitchell trophy race at Mt. Clemens, Mich., setting a new speed record of 216.832 miles an hour over the rectangular 20-mile course.

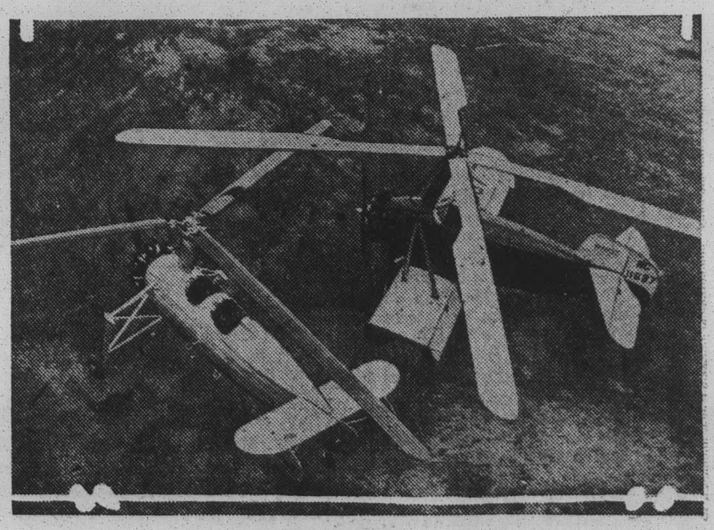
GRAND CHAMPION

The all-American golden trophy cup was awarded to this black Cochin bantam hen, grand champion at the International Bantam and Breeders exhibition at Cleveland. The bantam, a feather-booted Chinese bird, exhibited by W. F. Caskey of Topeka, Kan., is shown above being held by Miss Dorothy Meiner alongside the trophy.

Getting Ready to "Speed Up" Congress

Workmen are shown installing new high-speed elevators in the Capitol building in Washington. The old ones were too slow for the congressmen.

Old and New in "Flying Windmills"



The very latest development in aerial travel—the new Kellett wingless autogiro—is shown with the older type of the windmill plane. The new "auto" has only three blades in its rotor system. The flexibility of the rotors furnishes control and does away with wings and elevator controls. The ship has a minimum flying speed of 16 miles per hour and a top speed of 125 miles per hour. It can take off within a 60-foot area and land without any landing run at all.

Bedtime Story for Children

PETER LISTENS FOR SOMETHING

THE leaves of the trees turned yellow and red and brown. They began to drop, a few at first, and more and more every day, until all but the spruce trees and the pine trees and the hemlock trees and the fir trees and the cedar trees were bare. The fur of Peter's coat was growing thicker. The grass of the Green Meadows had turned brown. All these things were signs which Peter knew well. They meant that rough Brother North Wind and Jack Frost were on their way down from the Far North to stay.

Peter spent a great deal of time in the dear Old Brier Patch just sitting still and listening. He didn't know what he was listening for. It just seemed to him that there was something he ought to hear at this time of year, and so he sat listening and listening and wondering what he was listening for.

Then late one afternoon there came floating down to him from high up in the sky, faintly at first, but growing louder, a sound unlike any Peter had heard all the long summer through. The sound was of many voices mingled. "Honk! Honk! Honk! Ka-honk, honk, honk, ka-honk!" they cried. Peter gave a little jump.

"That's what I've been listening for," he thought. "Honker the Goose and his friends are coming! Oh, I do hope they will stop where I can pay them a call."

He hopped out to the edge of the dear Old Brier Patch that he might see better, and looked up in the sky. Very high up, flying in the shape of a letter V, he saw a flock of birds moving steadily from the direction of the Far North. By the sound of their voices he knew that they had flown far that day and were tired. One bird was in the lead, and this he guessed to be his old friend Honker. Straight over his head they passed, and as Peter listened to their cries he felt within him the very spirit of the Far North, that great, wild, lonely land which he had never seen, but of which he had so often heard.

He Saw a Flock of Birds Moving Steadily From the Direction of the Far North.

Suddenly Honker turned and headed in the direction of the Big River. Then he began to slant down, his flock following him. Presently they disappeared behind the trees along the bank of the Big River. Peter gave a happy sigh. "They are going to spend the night there," thought he. "When the moon comes up I will run over there for then they will come ashore, and I know just where. Now that they've arrived I know that winter is not far away. Honker's voice is as sure a sign of the coming of winter as is Winsome Bluebird's that Spring will soon be here."

QUESTION BOX
By ED WYNN...
The Perfect Fool

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I went into a restaurant the other day and ordered some "liver and bacon." The waitress brought me some bacon, but said I would have to wait for my liver until after the two men at the next table were served. What answer have you for that?

Truly yours,
PHIL HARMONIC.

Answer: That is the toughest question I've had, but I've worked it out. The two men must have ordered before you placed your order. They probably ordered liver, the same as you. She served them first because she didn't want you to have your "liver out of order."

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I just arrived in town today and noticed some signs on the lamp post. I am a little nearsighted and cannot see what are on the signs. Can you tell me what they are for and why they are up so high?

Yours truly,
I. VORY.

Answer: They are put on top of the lamp posts so that people passing will see them. You are supposed to climb up the post and read the sign. If it says "fresh paint" then you know you shouldn't lean against the post.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I am keeping company with a young woman who is very fond of horses. I am thinking of marrying her. Every one tells me a woman who loves horses will make a good wife. Do you believe that?

Sincerely,
I. M. A. BOOB.

Answer: All I can say is that it is true a woman loves anything she can drive.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I am a married man with three children. I keep working but seem unable to make both ends meet. What shall I do?

Sincerely,
AL. TRUISTIC.

Answer: That's easy. If you can't make both ends meat, make one vegetables.

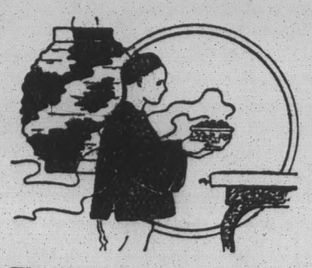
Do YOU Know—



That "chop suey" is unknown in China—except in a few semi-foreign restaurants. It was "invented" and named in the Southern Pacific railroad camps in America, more than half a century ago. A cook for Chinese workmen threw in a little of everything and called it "chop suey."

Mother's Cook Book

SOME TESTED GOOD THINGS

THERE is an old saying that "an apple a day keeps the doctor away," and an onion a day keeps everybody away. A good time to indulge in the odoriferous bulb is at a time when you will not annoy others. Onions are such wholesome vegetables that they should be served at least twice a week in some form during the entire winter. An onion sirup cannot be excelled for a cough, and a poultice of chopped raw onion, mixed with rye flour with a bit of vinegar to moisten, makes a remedy for any lung trouble. Not pleasant, but very effective.

Lemon Pudding.

Mix one cupful of flour, two egg yolks well beaten, one lemon, juice and rind, one teaspoonful of melted butter, and one cupful of milk. When well blended fold in the well-beaten whites of the eggs and bake in a shallow baking dish set into hot water. Bake three minutes. Serve hot or cold.

Baked Stuffed Onions.

This makes a most satisfying main dish. Peel and cook the onions in boiling salted water for ten minutes. Take out the centers, drain well. Parboil a small green pepper and remove the seeds, peel 12 large mushroom caps, cook in three tablespoonfuls of butter with the onion scooped from the centers, finely chopped. Add one-half cupful of bread crumbs, salt, pepper and a tablespoonful of butter; mix well. Fill six medium-sized onions and top each with a mushroom cap. Put into a baking dish with a little water, cover and bake in a moderate oven about one hour. Remove the cover the last 15 minutes and brown. They are delicious without mushrooms, or with a bit of sausage.

Walnut and Salmon Salad.

Separate into flakes one-fourth of a cupful of canned salmon. Take one-half cupful of walnut meats coarsely chopped. Shred three-fourths of a cupful of cabbage, let stand in cold water to crisp. Drain, mix with the salmon and nuts, add one cupful of cooked salad dressing and serve on lettuce.

Portrait of One Business Man

By ANNE CAMPBELL

THEY say in business he plays chess.
He takes no stock in happiness,
Or the well being or the hope
Of those who work for him, and grope
Back to the light of day again.
The boss plays chess. . . . His pawns are men.

He sits aloof from those who try
To please him, with a wary eye
Upon his interests . . . and feels
Himself a man of high ideals.
With no thought but of gain, he plays
A game of stalling and delays.

I think there is a Power that sees
His many needless cruelties,
And sometime, though the years are long,
That bait the weak, and feed the strong,
The Boss will hear, as lights grow dim:
"Checkmate!" . . . It will be said to him!

Putting State Heroes on the Skids

STATUES of state heroes in Statuary hall, in the Capitol at Washington, were becoming too numerous and too heavy for safety, so to relieve the strain it was ordered that thirty of them be removed to other quarters. The illustration shows the removal of John Hanson who, according to Marylanders, was the first President of the United States.

Let Our Motto Be GOOD HEALTH

BY DR. LLOYD ARNOLD
Professor of Bacteriology and Preventive Medicine, University of Illinois, College of Medicine.

A NEW ATTITUDE TOWARD FOOD RATIONS

The depression we are now in is nothing new in the world's history. We have had many depressions before. But there is something new in the way we are apportioning food to the needy. In former times it was a bare subsistence ration. In this age, however, most relief organizations ask: What must a family be given to maintain health? The maintenance of health and the maintenance of a bare subsistence ration are two entirely different things.

Particularly are health officials concerned with the maintenance of health among growing children. The children of today are the rulers of tomorrow.

But the past twenty years the United States has had the healthiest young people in the world. This is because we did not have to make the dietetic sacrifices the leading European countries did during the war and post-war periods.

Our young people had food enough and the right kind of food. It is up to us now to see that the standards of nutrition are not lowered to the danger point.

Especially should relief organizations remember that milk is the most important food a child can have, for "milk builds bone and muscle better than any other food." One quart a day per child is the ideal ration, and never less than three-fourths quart per child.

If the expenditure is fairly ample, then, according to Dr. Henry Sherman, nutrition expert of Columbia university, who quotes Lucy H. Gillett of the American Child Health association, the food money should be divided into fifths:

One-fifth, or more, for milk and cheese.

One-fifth, more or less, for vegetables and fruits.

One-fifth, or more, for bread and cereals.

One-fifth, or less, for meats, fish and eggs.

One-fifth or less, for fats, sugar and other groceries.

But if the amount of food money has to be drastically curtailed, then the money should be divided into thirds:

One-third for milk and cheese.

One-third for vegetables and fruits.

One-third for bread and cereals.

"Let retrenchment of expenditures," says Doctor Sherman, "take the form, first, of foregoing the purchase of foods of other groups, and, next, of selecting the cheaper or cheapest forms or articles within each of three groups just mentioned as essential. From certain standpoints two forms of milk may seem worlds apart; but any kind of milk is nutritionally more like any other kind of milk than is any other food. A crisp green vegetable or a juicy fruit may seem much preferable to a potato; but with expenditure forced to a sufficiently low level, the cheapest vegetable to be had can carry the nutritional responsibility for the whole group of fruits and vegetables during an emergency period."

Let us hope that each community has some philanthropist who will donate, through the winter months, a teaspoon of cod liver oil to each needy child under two years of age, as a preventive against rickets.

A point that is not sufficiently stressed, I believe, in low cost rations, is that cheap foods can be made palatable and interesting. At home demonstration fairs, instead of prizes being given to fancy dishes, they should be given to the cook who can produce the best bean or pea or potato soup, using only cheap materials. For instance a bit of bay leaf and rutabaga added to pea soup gives it distinction. Onions are cheap and give good seasoning. A writer commentator, discussing present living conditions in Europe, stated that the Germans lived better on the same food expenditure than the English did, because the German women made their food taste good.

A food that should be used much more frequently is whole wheat grains. Whole wheat offers one of our cheapest, best balanced foods.

Slow boiling over a low fire for six hours will cook wheat grains. The cooked cereal contains starch, which is fuel; protein, a tissue builder; some fats and vitamins. The fats and vitamins are in the germ of the grain. Wheat swells to four times its volume after boiling. When you boil the wheat, add to it eight times as much water, and never pour off excess liquid; boil it into the grains. Add salt of course. Wheat cooked this way has a nutty flavor; it is most tasty of all the cereals, and one does not tire of it.

One pound of wheat grains contains 1,600 calories. Each cup of cooked wheat contains 200 calories or body energy producing units, in addition to a well-balanced starch, protein, salt and vitamin content. Whole milk, cream, or condensed milk and sugar can be added for goodness and to increase the food value.

A person could live on whole wheat and milk for a long time, with the addition of onions, potatoes and tomatoes to combat scurvy. Children would need cod liver oil to prevent rickets.

Housewife's Idea Box

To Prevent Rubbers From Cracking

If you wish to extend the life of your rubber overshoes, you must give them a little attention. Rub them with sweet oil before wearing them. Let the oil remain on for a day or two. Then remove it with a soft cloth. If this is repeated now and then you will be surprised to find how much longer they wear.

Rabbit Pests Make Way Across Barren Region

Intervening beween the agricultural districts that border the coast on the east and the western part of Australia, is an arid, sandy desert of so forbidding an aspect and so full of natural dangers to human beings on account of lack of water that it has been explored but little by white man. This inhospitable, barren region has a width of more than 1,000 miles from east to west.

Surely no rabbit could ever cross that expanse of desert, thought the wise ones. But gradually the invaders moved onward until they had populated the vast territory which had seemed heretofore incapable of sustaining any kind of animal life except a few specimens that are indigenous to the desert.

It was when the oncoming rabbits were about to reach the other side of the wide expanse of waste country that the first long fence was built to shut the myriads of grass and crop destroyers out from the more settled portion of the state.

LUST FOR WORLD POWER.

Japan is in a flare over her limit in the 5-5-3 parity of nations. She insists on being on an equal with United States and Great Britain, otherwise the Japanese embassy will withdraw from the League of nations. At this instigation there will be no limit on building war ships and already preparations are on for a huge expenditure, even to the point of bonding the nation to finance a world-power navy.

What this would mean, is a cankerous sore on the Geneva peace plan and eventually will stir up strife in Pacific waters along the eastern and western shores, including most of the island possessions involved.

Like Germany, fighting Japan now seems to lust for world power. Her ambition is to spread her congested boundaries and enlarge her liberty and independence. Japan, is like the old saying about the fool who "laughs at her own folly." Like Germany, she must learn the error of her way—and that at tremendous cost; cost in human life, destruction of property, possessions and last but not least, total bankruptcy and insolvency of name and standing in the world.

Japan could start war and draw many nations into a defensive conflict. Her hostilities would be confined to Pacific shores where allied nations would mobilize.

It has been said that there never was a good war or a bad peace, yet one of the puzzling things we do is talk peace and at the same time be thinking war. We go further—we hope for peace but expect war! Nations are doing it the world over. No country comes out wholly and sincerely for peace without striking a blow against war at every opportunity. The financial monopoly can do a lot to frustrate peace movements, but the next war may be lacking in "cannon fodder." The world war taught us a lesson that will be remembered for many years to come, and the results of the last war is going to make it harder for another war. We are war-tired, so please give us a rest!

The Christmas seal has become a fixture of tender mercy in the mind and heart of millions. It is not only a sales plan to aid tuberculosis sufferers but a world-wide compassionate willingness to aid by sympathetic giving, from a humanitarian sense. This is a worthy cause at a minimum cost to anyone, but in the aggregate it foots up thousands of dollars to provide treatment and comfortable housing for those financially unable to seek medical attention and relief. Nearly every state in the Union has already established sanatoria for the treatment of tuberculosis patients. The disease is still working its dreadful onslaught among the populace; at present about one out of every seven deaths throughout the world is on account of this trouble. The seal idea was introduced into this country in 1907, and today provides funds for the maintainance of 2000 clinics and sanatoria. The plan was originated by Einar Holboell, as he stood watching the mail pour through the Copenhagen, Denmark, postoffice and racking his brain for a means of raising money to build a children's sanitorium.

Italy is in a jolly frame of mind. She has just celebrated the 13th year since its entrance of Facism under Benito Mussolini, the original "king-fish" dictator. He got a firm grip on his people under the principle of a Fascist and swung into power like one of Babe Ruth's home runs. Italy's Fascism is a police movement sponsered by the National Fascist party and dates from the time Mussolini took the reins on March 23, 1919. It was anti-socialist during the World War, but up to 1921 the party gained strength until 35 Facist deputies were sent to Parliament. It immediately became a national party with headquarters in Rome. The Communists and Facists had military conflicts with victory for Facism. Then Mussolini took politics in his own hands and forced party rule over government, making him prime minister. Italy, through Mussolini stresses intensification of military preparedness, which is not a sign of peace.

We might gather from statistics that "meat is the king of food." That is to say, the world and United States especially, believe in a platter of wholesome meat of some variety and choice on the dining table daily. From a check-up the average person eats his weight in meat every year, which is a little better than two-fifths of apound daily. This does not seem exhorbitant, yet in the mind of the vegetarian it would be looked upon with horror! The meat industry, next to the automobile, closely leads the world in volume of business with an average of 115 million head of live stock produced each year to provide the larders of the nation. From this 17,000,000,000 pounds of meat are marketed annually with a total value of $3,500,000,000. This is enough to stagger the mind by such facts and figures. Behold, how we love that juicy steak!

With Christmas only a few days away, everybody is catching the spirit. Joy bells are ringing its music in the tone of every voice. There is something quickening the impulse to do an act of kindness or generosity. Surely this year is reflecting the Yuletide radiance. Calvin Coolidge, while president sent out this message on Christmas Day, 1927: "To the American People: Christmas is not a time or a season, but a state of mind. To cherish peace and good will, to be plenteous in mercy, is to have the real spirit of Christmas. If we think on these things there will be born in us a Savior and over us all will shine a star—sending its gleam of hope to the world."

Golden Rule week is close at hand. A lot of us may believe in the Golden Rule principle, but how few really practice it. Our place on this old gray earth is but a speck, but there are areas of usefulness broader than we can comprehend. If we could carry out the principles of the Golden Rule, it would be the golden key to unlock prosperity for this old worried world. Maybe the time will come yet when we shall "do unto others as we would like to be done by." What a high plane of living this would be!

Merry Christmas Dinner Is Served

EVERGREEN is the theme of this smart setting for your Christmas dinner, and ever green will its memories be, if you plan it so that it is chuck full of pleasant fun, as well as pleasant food.

The good old Dutch burghers brought us much that is jolly about Christmas — the evergreen gaily bedecked, gifts that are surprises and feasting that is well seasoned with merry-making. We have to look still further back, however, for the real origin of the Christmas tree. It is believed to have been once the palm tree, used in the worship of the Egyptian goddess Isis. In northern climates, this association of the palm tree with the celebration of December 25th had to be modified by substituting the hardy fir tree.

A Gay Table

Let us use it plentifully for our Christmas dinner decoration. A decorative centerpiece may be made by filling a low red bowl with sprigs of evergreen and the large cones from the pine. Place a sprig of evergreen in each gift package that you tie with festive ribbons and put at each place. Tie each package differently, using red and silver and white as the main colors to contrast with your mass of green. If you don't wish to go to the expense of a gift for each one at the table, use funny toys, amusing puzzles or what you will, so long as it comes in a Christmas package.

Make your menu a symphony of red and green foods which are gay with Christmas flavor. Here is a suggestion for it, the recipes serving eight persons:

CHRISTMAS DINNER MENU

Stuffed Olives Spiced Crabapples
Hot Tomato Juice
Roast Turkey or Chicken with Mushroom Stuffing
Mashed Potatoes Giblet Gravy
Brussels Sprouts with Drawn Butter
Cranberry Sauce
Holly Berry Salad
Mince-Meat Ice Cream
Cordial Drops Coffee Nuts

Hot Tomato Juice: Combine the following ingredients and bring to boiling: contents of two 15-ounce cans of tomato juice, two bouillon cubes, one and one-half cups water, salt and pepper to taste and a few drops of Worcestershire sauce. Serve in cups with a sprinkling of minced parsley on top.

Mushroom Stuffing: Saute for a few minutes in four tablespoons butter four tablespoons chopped onion and mushrooms from one 4-ounce can of mushrooms which have been chopped up. Add to one and one-half quarts of dry bread. Then add two teaspoons salt, one-half teaspoon pepper, two teaspoons sage and one teaspoon thyme. Moisten with the mushroom liquor and as much water as is needed. This is enough to stuff a four to five pound chicken, and the ingredients should be doubled for stuffing a large turkey.

Holly Berry Salad: Drain beets from a No. 2 can of whole or rosebud beets, and scoop out the centers. Cover with French dressing and let stand several hours in the refrigerator. Meanwhile chop two hard-cooked eggs, season with salt and pepper and moisten with mayonnaise. Drain the beets, stuff with egg filling and arrange three or four in a wreath of watercress which has been dipped in French dressing.

Mince-Meat Ice Cream: Beat two egg yolks slightly, add one tablespoon flour which has been mixed with one-third cup sugar, then add the contents of one 6-ounce can of evaporated milk which has been scalded with one-half cup of water. Return to the double boiler and cook until it coats the spoon, stirring all the time. Cool. Freeze to a mush in refrigerator trays, stirring now and then. Add one and one-half cups of cream which has been beaten and one cup of canned mince-meat. Freeze again, stirring several times. Or the mixture may be frozen in an ice cream freezer with salt and ice.*

DR. KLEMPERER TO PLAY PIANO PART IN CONCERTO

Next Monday evening, December 17, the Los Angeles Philharmonic orchestra will appear in concert at the Savoy theatre and according to indications of seat sale there will be a capacity audience. The music loving public of this section heartily welcome Dr. Otto Klemperer and his associates back to San Diego.

Dr. Klemperer's personality as well as his splendid abilities as conductor so impressed local music patrons when he first appeared here last season at the head of the Philharmonic players that he has lingered vividly in memory and his return is awaited with genuine interest.

The mere size of the man compels attention, even were his directorial capabilities not as striking as they are. Standing 6½ feet in height, he has to dispense with use of a podium when conducting in order not to tower unduly above the orchestra. He does away also with a baton and, as one admirer has described it, "when he spreads his arms an entire orchestra seems to fall under the shadow of his wings!"

Monday night, in addition to conducting, Dr. Klemperer will be seen and heard as pianist for he will play the piano part in the first of the Brandenburg concertos by Bach —a classic masterpiece which San Diego has not before had opportunity to hear.

6608 HOURS EMPLOYMENT GIVEN AT GOODWILL

At the San Diego plant of the Goodwill Industries, 123 different persons were given work last month, the cash expenditure on that count being 83 per cent in excess of the payroll of November 1933. The total number of hours of labor given was 6608.

Supt. Myron Insko reports that the percentage who were turned away for lack of materials upon the renovation of which they could be employed was smaller than for many months. An increase in donations of castoffs would permit the employment of all who seek "Not Charity but a Chance" at the Goodwill Industries quarters.

"Luck knows not where I live, I guess, but trouble has my home address."

M. E. CHURCH SERVICES

"Is Jesus Attainable?" will be the subject for the Sunday morning's sermon. The service begins at 11 o'clock. Music will be furnished by the choir under the direction of Mrs. Anna Forsythe, and the male quartet composed of Messrs. Thomas, Geddes, Sharp and Parks will sing. All are invited to worship with us.

The church school will meet at 9:45. Classes are organized for all age groups, from kindergarten to adult. Dr. F. R. Felt teaches the adult class. Come and bring the children.

The Epworth League in the evening for young people under the leadership of Rolland Myer.

THE CHRISTMAS SPIRIT

The two organizations, Veterans of Foreign Wars and the American Legion of Ocean Beach call upon those who have, to help those who have not. In each store you will see a box to receive a small donation of food and a jar to receive cash. Fresh meat may be donated by leaving the order with the butcher in the store with which you trade. He will keep it until it is time to deliver the Christmas baskets. The cash donations will also be used to purchase fresh meat.

You will see a box in stores where there are toys so that the children may be especially remembered.

The distribution will be made in the beaches only and if you know of a home where a basket is needed, and will be welcome, please leave the name, address and number in the family with Wm. C. Madigan, 4741 Niagara street, or Ralph G. Chadwick, 2135 Froude St. (tel. BV 0166-W). The aim of the Ocean Beach V. F. W. and American Legion is to try and see that there is a Christmas dinner in every home and toys for every child in our community. Please help us to realize this aim, and when we are eating our Christmas dinner and our children are enjoying their toys we will all be able to feel the happiness that comes from sharing our joy with others less fortunate than we.

Beware of a still dog, still water or a still woman.

Sweetest the song wherein the singer is lost.

LIEUT. BERT A. ALLEN POST No. 2415 AND AUXILIARY

Lt. Bert A. Allen post 2415 Veterans of Foreign Wars, are running punch board turkey raffles. This is a great chance to win that bird for Christmas. They are also maintaining a Christmas tree sales lot on Atlantic and Witherby. Funds from the proceeds of these two enterprizes will be used for Christmas relief and general purposes to further the good work of our organization.

A jolly card party was given at the post hall Veterans of Foreign Wars 2415 last Friday night by the post and auxiliary of Lt. Bert A. Allen post. Red berries and poinsettas furnished the decoration making a festive array. Bridge prizes were won by Mrs. Henry Lancaster and Mrs. Lee Bingham; five hundred prizes were won by Mrs. Pope and Mrs. Bill Madigan; Frank Wisdom won the flinch prize and Mrs. Harry Aubrey the pinochle prize. A door prize was also given and this was won by Mrs. Frank Wisdom, the cake raffle by Mr. Robinson. Refreshments were served and a good time had by all. We hope to all meet again next month.

ALLIED VETERANS WANT TOYS

The Allied Veterans are reconditioning disabled toys for the poor children of the city for Xmas and are in need of more toys. Anyone having toys or play things, please call Bob Kluse, F-3925. and the toys will be called for by the Sea Scouts of Old Ironsides, troop 29, Ocean Beach, for delivery to the Allied Veterans shop in San Diego.

TROOP 56 POINT LOMA GIRL SCOUTS OF AMERICA

Monday, December 24, at 8 p. m., the girls will present a Christmas program for the Goodwill Industries in San Diego.

In order to present their program at Scout house, December 15, a practice was held Sunday, Dec. 9.

Mrs. Otila P. Shields has registered as troop lieutenant. The troop is to be congratulated in this addition as Mrs. Shields is a trained nurse and has been active in scout activities for some time. The troop met at Scout house Thursday for a dress rehersal.

Saturday afternoon Mary Jane Mackey and Otila Shields called on Miss Lucy Perry of Loma Portal, presenting the troop's regards.

The Brownies will meet Wednesday afternoon, at 3:15 at Scout hut December 19.

DELIGHTFUL CHRISTMAS PLAY SATURDAY, DECEMBER 15

Those who witness the winter play of Lomaland School, which is by request Kingsley's immortal "Water Babies," on Saturday, December 15th, will be well repaid, for woven into the fabric of fairy songs and dances is the lesson taught by all of the world's spiritual teachers—the triumph of love over cruelty and selfishness.

The boy taking the part of Tom, the little chimney-sweep, is much to be commended on his natural acting ability. Florence Collisson, directress who has produced the play several times in London, has entrusted the combined part of Mrs. Bedonebyasyoudid and Mrs. Doasyouwouldbedoneby to a child for the first time, thus making it an all children's cast. This part, an extremely heavy one, is well carried by the young actress.

The music and dancing are as usual dreams of beauty. Both choral singing and rhythmic dancing are definite parts of the children's school-work. Under the daily training of Inez Davenport in the singing and of Miss Collisson in the dancing the young actors have acquired a professional touch that banishes all thought of "an amateur children's play" from the minds of the audience.

Admission is by program, obtainable at the residence of Mrs. M. Q. Wright, 4475 Santa Monica Ave. —Tel. Bayview 0004-J. —or at the Rotunda door Saturday evening.

NEW PASTOR THANKS PEOPLE

In spite of the rain and unusual weather for Ocean Beach, we are glad to announce to fellow Lutherans and the general public that the opening service of the Ocean Beach Lutheran Mission last Sunday afternoon was a great success. We wish to thank the many friends and members who attended, and helped to make these services the success they were. We hope you will come again and worship with us, for a hearty welcome awaits all.

Geo. M. Jacobsen.

BAPTIST CHURCH SERVICES

Rev. W. S. Dunn will occupy the pulpit in the morning hour of worship, and his sermon theme will be "Bethlehem's Forecast." The song service will be at 7.:30 p. m. The mixed quartet will render a special number and the pastor will speak on the subject "The Great Expectation."

You are cordially invited to the services of this church.

FROM 'PERSONALITY' TO 'INDIVIDUALITY'

Personality is that part of man which is mortal and exists as such for one earthlife only. Individuality is the eternal pilgrim—our higher self or spiritual soul that goes through the different incarnations of earth life. Man is therefor, dual.

The Ocean Beach Theosophical club will meet on Thursday evening, December 20th, at 7:30 p. m. in the bungalow of the school to discuss man as a two-fold being. James L. Melancon will lead the discussion. All are welcome and questions are invited.

On Sunday, December 16th, at 10:30 a. m. the Lotus circle meets in the American Legion hall on Abbott street. The aim of the Lotus circle is character building—to give to children a knowledge of life that will enable them to avoid the pitfalls

Parent Teacher Ass'n

Ocean Beach PTA met Wednesday in the Methodist church.

Mrs. Jalie N. Shore, assistant editor of the Courier, spoke on the spirit of Christmas that is within us. A short story read by Mrs. Shore, emphasized love, forgiveness and gentleness as attributes of the real Christmas spirit.

Daryl Bailey played "Holy Night" on the violin and Warren Bailey, his brother, accompanied him at the piano.

School education of today takes us a long way from the little red school house as portrayed by Mrs. Jessie Ward who gave a short history of California's school systems.

With two rooms represented the 4B and 6B, many parents came, mostly mothers of the children in the play and chorus. Miss Neal's chorus was especially nice. The play by the 4B was all about a Christmas tree and makes us all remember that a tree is a living thing, a symbol of life and growth and a reaching up toward God.

POINT LOMA HIGH PLANS CHRISTMAS FESTIVAL

A Christmas festival based on Charles Dickens' "Christmas Carol," will be given at the Point Loma high school the evenings of December 19 and 20, under the patronage of Point Loma PTA.

The departments of drama, art, music, and girls' physical education are presenting the program in the halls and auditorium under the general direction of W. Emery Shepard. Here, in the costumes of the Dickens' period, dancers will perform in swirling flakes of snow, groups of singers will entertain with Christmas Carols, as the lights from the stained glass windows of a cathedral give perfect illusion.

CHURCHES OF CHRIST, SCIENTIST

"God the Preserver of Man" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon on Sunday in all Christian Science churches, branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass. The Golden Text is from the Psalms: "The Lord preserveth all them that love him."

A Scriptural citation in the Lesson-Sermon presents these verses from the Acts: "And it came to pass, as Peter passed throughout all quarters, he came down also to the saints which dwelt at Lydda. And there he found a certain man named Aeneas, which had kept his bed eight years, and was sick of the palsy. And Peter said unto him, Aeneas, Jesus Christ maketh thee whole: arise, and make thy bed. And he arose immediately."

One of the passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, states, "The calm, strong currents of true spirituality, the manifestations of which are health, purity, and self-immolation, must deepen human experience, until the beliefs of material existence are seen to be a bald imposition, and sin, disease, and death give everlasting place to the scientific demonstration of divine Spirit and to God's spiritual, perfect man."

SERVICES AT LUTHERAN MISSION

"Why Did Jesus Come Into The World?" will be the subject of the sermon to be delivered by George M. Jacobsen, vicar in charge of the Ocean Beach Lutheran Mission. This is a question which has been answered in a great many ways. It is one of great importance to every man, woman and child. But one answer can be correct. A cordial invitation is extended to all Lutherans and to the general public as well to attend this service in which this question will be answered. Services are held regularly at the Woman's clubhouse every Sunday morning at 10:45 o'clock.

The Sunday School lesson for this Sunday will be "The Announcement of the Savior's Birth." All children are to gather hereafter at the clubhouse at 9:30 o'clock for their hour of Sunday School instruction.

This afternoon, December 14. at 3:30 o'clock at the clubhouse an important rehearsal will be held for the children's Christmas program to be held on Sunday evening, December 23, at 7:30 o'clock. All children of the school are urged to attend.

POINT LOMA EASTERN STARS

Point Loma chapter O.E.S. No. 490 will meet in regular form, Monday evening, 8 o'clock December 17, at the Masonic hall, on Newport Ave. Edythe Kenline, worthy matron and Harry Sweet, worthy patron presiding.

A Christmas party will be held with musical numbers and the exchange of gifts to conclude the social part of the evening.

Point Loma Star club O.E.S. will meet Thursday at noon, December 20, at the home of Mrs. Ralph Lathrop, 4906 Brighton avenue. The annual Christmas basket will be filled with staple foods by each person attending.

WARREN WALKER SCHOOL

A beautiful print of one of the finest and most famous pictures in the world, and one which is particularly appropriate for appreciation at Christmas time, "The Sistine Madonna", was presented during opening exercises this week for the students of the Warren-Walker school. This great work, painted by Raphael, was executed entirely by his own hands for the monks in the monastery of San Sisto. The original picture is upon canvas of fine-texture, the figures are life-size, and the picture is noted for its gorgeous and true colors. The Mother and Child are represented as descending from heaven while, on the left, the venerable Pope Sixtus watches the child; on the right, young St. Barbara smiles down upon the twin, boy, angels.

The Christmas play to be presened for the parents of the students, Friday afternoon, December 21, is entitled the "Christmas Spirit". It is a symbolic play in which the character of loving-kindness, charity, unselfishness and love, present the true ideals of the Christmas season.

A new student, John Campbell, was enrolled in the kindergarten class last week. Freddie Kraft, a former student, re-entered the school last Tuesday.

THE THEOSOPHICAL SOCIETY: POINT LOMA

Emmett Small will be the speaker at Theosophical headquarters, Point Loma next Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. His subject is "We Live Again," and he will endeavor to show how the teaching of Reincarnation is a sine qua non of a sane and intelligent civilization; how this doctrine in its general application was the normal belief of all ancient peoples; and how its acceptance today would tend to broaden existing philosophic conceptions, reveal the unity at the source of all religions, and bring about perhaps more than any other one thing the realization of the brotherhood of man as a practival fact of being. Firm belief in this essential tenet of Theosophy changes the whole psycnology of a man's being, gives him hope, expands his vision, and teaches him to study loftier themes, for it gives him an interest in the invisible after-death realms which are the home of the Spirit. It teaches him to bear his own responsibilities gladly. It gives a key to physicians and supervisors of asylums and hospitals for the feeble-minded in the care that should be given to those in their charge, and throws light on many problems explained or waived aside nowadays by the exponents of mental psychology as mere complexes.

Mr. Small is associate editor of "Lucifer," international organ of the Theosophical club, with 73 branch-clubs in different parts of the world.

W.C.T.U. MEETING THURSDAY

The Woman's Christian Temperance Union of Ocean Beach will hold its monthly meeting, Thursday, 2 p. m. December 20, at the home of Mrs. Ella Cole, 4834 Niagara Ave. Subject for day Peace and Counting the Cost.

Our union with other nationwide unions, pledged at the late convention to direct their efforts and thousands of dollars toward the spreading of alchol education. The goal is 1939, it being the centenary of the birth of Frances Willard.

Come and enjoy our meeting and join hands with us.

SYNOPSIS

Prudence Schuyler comes to Prosperity Farm to make a new life for herself and her brother, David, his health broken by tragedy. The second day on her farm Prue falls from the barn loft into the arms of Rodney Gerard, rich young man, a neighbor. There is at once a mutual attraction, but Prudence suspects men since her sister's husband ran away with her brother's wife. Len Calloway tries to buy Prue's timber, but she contracts with Rod to dispose of the trees. David comes to the farm. Prue accompanies Rod and Jean, Rod's thirteen-year-old niece, to a circus. Chicot, an old clown, is accidentally killed. He was the grandfather of Milly Gooch, one of the circus riders. Rod became friendly with Milly when she lived on Prosperity Farm. Calloway intimidates laborers so that they cannot be hired to cut the timber for Rodney Gerard. Milly Gooch broke her engagement to Calloway; he believes Rod was the cause and has since been his enemy. After Chicot's death Rod calls on Milly to see if he can be of any help. Prue sees in a newspaper a flashlight picture of him with Milly. Rodney goes to New York for timber cutters, taking David with him to help select men from among the Rescue Mission hangers-on. Rod sends word of his coming, with a crew of laborers. To keep the knowledge of the workers' arrival from Calloway, Prudence enters her timber tract with him on the pretense of bargaining on the lumbering. He confines her in a cabin.

"Hold on! Why the rush? You've been fooling me, haven't you? Been trying to make me believe that I was to cut your timber, while all the time you had your tongue in your cheek. What's the game? I was ready to play fair. I've no quarrel with you. I'm a just man. But you've tricked me. Now you'll pay for it. I'll keep you here till you sign a contract for me to cut for you."

His cool, restrained ferocity stopped Prue's heart for an instant. She seated herself in the one chair, carefully spread her skirts to the blaze, and looked up at him.

"You think you will keep me here, you mean. Wake up! You are in the Twentieth ceutury. You have forgotten that three persons already know with whom I came into the woods. I'll tell you my game, as you call it. Rodney Gerard is bringing in a crew. I preferred that you shouldn't see them arrive. And you didn't. Easy, wasn't it?"

He seized her shoulders. With all her strength she shook off his hands and retreated to the fireplace.

"Don't touch me again! Don't dare!"

The words shivered into a whisper. The icy cold of the brook was stealing through her bones. Calloway folded his arms and scowled.

"He is a little mad," she thought, as she had thought once before.

"Dare! That's a joke. Who can stop me? Your foxy partner is busy with his gang, isn't he? I take off my hat to you, you put your fake friendliness across. I believed you. I asked you to marry me! You've been laughing at me! Now it's my turn. You're here and here you stay. You needn't shiver. You are safe enough. I'm no bum. I'm not a lady-snatcher like Rod Gerard. I'm a just man! I'm entitled to be boss of this county and no one's going to block me. Get that. I won't stand for interference."

Prudence regarded Calloway incredulously. The man was molding his life to an obsession.

"Why are you staring at me? Don't you understand? You'll spend the night here, and then I guess—"

"Say, lissen! You've got another guess comin', Buddy."

A man swayed in the entrance. His hunted eyes, set in dark rings, glared from his cadaverous face, as vicious a face as ever scowled behind bars. From clawlike fingers a revolver dangled.

Prudence pressed her hand hard against her lips to keep back a cry. The convict? Perhaps he had taken the emerald and diamonds last night. Perhaps she had been horribly unjust to Walter Gerard. Calloway sprang for him. He leveled the gun. It clicked.

"Hands up! Lay off! Get me? If either you or the jane yip, I'll put a bullet through each of you, an' I wouldn't stop to choose which first, either. I ain't like you, you big noise. I am a bum."

He watched Calloway's retreat through half-closed lids. The glint between them was murderous. Prudence said as flippantly as if her heart were not shaking her body with its clamor

"This is getting to be one of those parties, isn't it?"

"Say, you're a cool one, sister. I guess you can have the cabin after all, Buddy. There'll be folks here after this skirt you kidnaped."

"I haven't kid—"

"Keep your mouth shut! Sit down!"

Calloway sat with a suddenness which rocked the chair. The man in possession of the revolver scowled at Prudence.

"Here you! Scatter that fire! Quick! Think I want the whole pack after you following that smoke? That'll do. Drop the stick! Stand up by the chimney! Gimme those pearls!"

One instant of paralyzing fright, and then an inner strength sprang to Prue's rescue.

"Pearls!" Her laugh was a masterpiece of its kind. "Pearls! I didn't realize that my wax beads could fool anybody."

The man edged nearer. His revolver covered Calloway, whose eyes looked like those of a trapped fox.

"Wax beads! Oh yeah? Think I don't know the real thing when I see it? What do you s'pose I was doin' a stretch— Get going, sister. Take 'em off, quick, or I'll do it, an' I won't be too easy, neither. Lissen, get a move on!"

Was this nightmare, Prudence wondered, as her unsteady hand fumbled with the diamond and platinum clasp at the back of her neck. It must be. What had seemed an amusing plan to divert Len Calloway couldn't develop into a possible tragedy, could it?

The man grabbed the pearls from her fingers, weighed them in his left hand. His leer was horrible.

"Wax beads! Oh, yeah! I guess they'll get me three squares a day for a year of two."

Was that a faint call? Prudence caught her throat to stifle an exclamation. The man with the revolver stiffened. He thrust the pearls into his dirty shirt. His eyes went dead.

"Lissen, you two. Someone's coming. I'm gettin' out. I'll keep this gat trained on you. If either of you tip 'em off I've been here, I'll shoot you on the trail. I'll know."

He backed to the door. With a quick swoop, Prudence flung brush on the coals. Smoke would give a clue to the rescuers. It caught fire and roared up chimney.

"Why you—" Dazed by her daring, the fugitive hesitated. In that instant Calloway sprang and caught him about the shoulders. The revolver clattered to the floor. Prue seized it.

"Hands Up! Both of You!"

"Don't waste your strength, Calloway." Why couldn't she keep her voice steady? "I've got him covered. I'm not a crack shot, but I think I can drop him at this distance."

Calloway turned and took a step forward.

"Stay where you are! Hands up! Both of you! If you move, the next s-scene in this screen thriller will be cut by the censor."

Gun in one hand, one hand clutching the back of the chair, Prudence covered the two men. She disciplined a wild impulse to shout with laughter. Calloway's face! His mouth hung open as if surprise had permanently dislocated his jaw. The other—she shivered—never had she seen such eyes. Trapped. Desperate. Murderous. She had not known that anything human could look like that. David had known, though. Dave! Where was he? If only—

The cabin door! Opening! Slowly! Soundlessly! Something sinister in its caution. Had the escaped convict a pal? Her blood chilled. Who had come?

"Give me that gun!"

Rodney Gerard had the revolver in his hand before Prudence realized who had dashed into the cabin. With a relieved sigh Calloway dropped his hands.

"Put 'em up again!"

"Don't be a darn fool, Gerard. I—"

"Put 'em up! There's blood on your forehead, Prue. Who hurt you?"

Prue's brain felt curiously light. Her voice seemed to trickle from a great empty space behind her eyes.

"Hurt me! No one. Believe it or not, I was about to add a colorful fact to the state of Maine war against crime, when you crashed in. They're an intriguing pair, aren't they? Reading from left to right, you have first a pearl thief, then a—just man—such a just man!"

"Steady, Prue. Don't shiver like that. I'll get your pearls."

"While you're getting those, you might make that man return the jewels he stole from my safe last night."

"Lissen, what does the jane mean, jewels? Do you think if I had anything I could turn into money I'd be hangin' round here? Say, she's crazy."

Was the man acting amazement, or hadn't he taken the emerald?

"Crazy or not, you'll come along with us. Get going!" Gerard gave the revolver a suggestive hitch. "Follow him, Calloway. Keep your hands up, both of you. Prue, come on."

She nodded. Len Calloway looked as if he were burning up, his face had a purplish tinge. He spoke between clenched teeth.

"I'll get going all right. But watch out, Gerard. I'm not through with you. Miss Schuyler's all for you, isn't she? Have you told her that you've been paying Milly Gooch's bills? Have you—Hi—there—you!"

He lunged for the man in front. Caught him about the waist. Fumbling for holds, the two strained and panted. The fugitive was smaller, but fear of a return to prison gave him superhuman strength. He twisted and twined about Calloway's legs until both went down with a crash. With the agility of a cat and the cry of an enraged animal, the victor was on his feet, whirled, and grabbed the gun from Gerard's hand. Crouching, he backed toward the fireplace. His eyes were flames. He aimed the revolver steadily.

"Beat it, you two guys—and beat it quick! I'll keep the pearls—and the girl."

Prudence retreated to the wood pile. She had thought her mind geared to surprises, but this quick turn stopped her heart. She couldn't back away further; the wood pile was like a wall behind her. Hadn't David said that nine times out of ten when one was backed against an insurmountable wall, a gate would open behind if you put up the fight of your life? Perhaps there was a gate in this wall--perhaps. A gate! Cautiously, breathlessly, she groped behind her.

The convict's clawlike fingers tightened on the revolver. He scowled hideously at Gerard. "Hey, you! Cut out that cig. stuff! Beat it, or I'll fire and—"

With all her force Prudence brought the dull side of the ax down on his arm. His sentence shattered into profanity. His gun clattered to the floor. Gerard seized it, thrust it against his back as he whirled on Prue.

"Hey! Cut that out!"

"Beat it, or I'll fire!" Gerard's words, if not his voice, were a perfect imitation as he prodded the cursing, shambling man toward the door.

Calloway thundered "You're not letting him get away, Rod? Don't you know he's the escaped prisoner they're hunting?"

"He won't make his get-away with you at his heels. It's your job to deliver him to the sheriff after you've frisked Miss Schuyler's pearls off him. Get busy, Len."

How could Rodney be so cool, so smiling, Prudence wondered frantically.

"He don't need get busy. Here they are." The captive pulled the lovely, lustrous string from under his ragged, dirty shirt. Prudence snatched it from the floor and clutched it tight against her breast.

"Come across with those jewels!" Gerard poked a reminder.

"Lissen, don't get fresh with the gat. I've coughed up the pearls, ain't I—an' I don't know nothin' about no jewels."

"Let him go! Let him go! I don't care about the jewels. Please let him go." The break in Prue's voice maddened her.

The muscles of Gerard's jaw tightened.

"On your way!" He held out the revolver. "Take it, Len. Don't let this bird stop till you have him safe behind bars."

Calloway gripped the gun. He said through clenched teeth:

"You're taking chances. How do you know I won't shoot you?"

Rodney Gerard regarded him through narrowed lids and smiled.

"Because you're such a just man, Len. Drop that ax, Prue, you won't need it again."

"Get going!" Calloway's fury was partially expended in the jab he gave the man at the other end of the revolver.

The door swung on its hinges. Through the opening came the crackling of twigs under stumbling, heavy feet, rough voices. The sounds dwindled into forest silence.

"Is it s-safe to go now?" With unsteady fingers Prue tried to clasp the pearls about her throat.

"In just a minute. Let me do that. Bend your head, Gorgeous."

The husk in Gerard's voice, his fingers against the back of her neck set Prue shivering again.

"What's the matter?" He looked down at her skirt. "Your clothes are soaked. Your lips are blue. How did you get so wet? That's a mean bruise. What happened?"

"Lost my way. Fell into the b-brook".

He pulled off his coat. "Put your arms in. Don't argue. Do as you're told. It's not a perfect thirty-six, but it will help keep you warm."

"How did you know where I was?"

"Jean got anxious about you. Turned back and met us. That child has a brain. She knew you shouldn't have gone with Calloway. Why, why did you do it?"

"Jim wished he could be out of the way when the g-gang arrived. I tried to help, and now you c-crab—"

"I'm not crabbing. Don't you know that I almost lost my mind when Jean told me where you'd gone? Don't you know that I went through h—l getting to you? Don't you know that it's torture for me to see you shiver and have my hands tied by that infernal promise I made? If I were to touch you—"

The caressing break in his voice, the faint tremor of his lips sent the blood burning to Prue's hair.

"Oh, come on! Let's get out of here!" He pulled a flashlight from his coat pocket.

"Let's hurry! Hurry! I'm frozen!"

"Go on."

He followed as she entered the trail. Every swish of her wet skirts about her knees sent a million little icy shivers coasting along her veins. Gerard faced her down the trail. The hand that touched her was like ice. Contrition swept her.

"You're freezing! Take your coat. I don't need it, r-really I don't."

"Stop talking. Go on! If you don't, I will carry you, and you are not a fairy, girl."

He was cold, but of course he wouldn't acknowledge it. Had he heard what Calloway had said about Milly and money—Ooch, how cold her legs and feet were—like sticks of ice! There! She had put the right one forward. Now the left—right—left—right—Had Rodney paid the circus girl's bills? Left—right—"Keep on feet!"—left—right—march time—the words were like a merry-go-round. She couldn't stop them. The clearing at last. Copper-red light on the trees. A fire? No, the sunset! A sky of rainbow splendor. The color warmed her, all except her feet. Right—left—they had frozen—

Someone caught her as she stumbled. Someone picked her up in his arms.

"How warm—how heavenly—Left—right—Please—p-lease — Jim — Jim—stop those words going round and round—"

Someone smothered something between his teeth. Someone pulled off the coat, bundled her into something woolly and soft, something that smelled of tobacco, lifted her into a car. She was warmer. Those horrid words had stopped whirling. Why should she have thought for an instant that she was with Jim Armstrong? She looked at the man at the wheel.

"Thank goodness, you have put on your coat! It would be you—the man-of-the-moment," she said unsteadily.

He looked straight down into her eyes. Straight and deep.

"But all the time you thought I was Jim."

Prudence closed her lids tight. That pesky, "Left!" "Right!" started in her head again. She had better keep them open. Rodney Gerard needn't growl at her. Suppose she were to remind him of Milly Gooch and—lucky she had found that out in time!

Gerard drew the robe closer about her.

"Warmer Gorgeous?"

Submerged Coral Reefs Make Lightning Changes

To watch a submerged coral reef is to witness miracles, says the National Geographic society. At one moment the whole reef is alive with pulsating, expanding, waving sea creatures of delicate pastel colors. A touch, a splash, or even the shadow from a boat overhead, causes a spasm of alarm. In a twinkling every living thing on the reef has changed. Frail anemones contract and withdraw into themselves. Jeweled fish dart into holes. The banded rockfish has changed its markings and the spotted flounder that rippled over the sand is now invisible, having changed color to resemble sand. For a minute the reef remains barren and dull. Then, one by one, fish and anemones take courage and furtively emerge.

The reason for these lightning changes is obvious when one realizes the greedy cannibalism of a coral reef. Though resembling the most retiring, sensitive flowers, anemones use their tentacles to seize and paralyze fish. The sargassumfish are such cannibals that they swallow each other. In this constant warfare, being continually preyed upon, many fish have developed unusual means of protection. The surgeon fish carries near its tail a sharp-edged spine capable of slashing its enemies. The puffer fish, under threat of being swallowed, inflates itself into an inedible, prickly ball.

Mackinac Island

The Indians named Mackinac Island Michilimackinac, meaning "Great Turtle." They reckoned it the abiding place of spirits and left many a peace offering there in the calcerous rock caves. It was here that Schoolcraft wrote his legend of Hiawatha, afterward made into a poem by Longfellow.

STRING HOLDER SUNBONNET GIRL

By GRANDMOTHER CLARK

Attractive String Holder

A ball of string is just as important in a kitchen as a pot holder or a fly swatter. String is used for many purposes, but where is it when you want it? This attractive string holder is always ready to serve you when hanging in its place somewhere on the kitchen wall. It is to be made up, and when finished looks like the picture shown above. Sunbonnet is made of bright colored prints. The face is painted. The ball of string is in the bonnet. String is used passing through a hole in mouth. A very catchy, useful, inexpensive gift.

Package No. A-7 contains percale in pretty patterns, lines stamped for cutting, painted face and foundation ready to be made up, also directions just how to do it.

Send 15 cents for this package.

School in the Sky

The headmaster of a Dutch school has conceived the brilliant idea of using an air liner to teach geography. Instead of trooping dolefully into their classroom, the children now eagerly take their seats in the airplane, each with a map beside him and a pair of earphones. While the flight is in progress, the geography master, sitting before a microphone in the fore part of the cabin, points out and explains the features of the countryside below, and the pupils check his remarks on their maps. A prearranged section of the Netherlands is taken with each flight. The children, it is found, absorb their lessons with 20 times the enthusiasm shown on the ground.—Tit-Bits Magazine.

FEWER AMERICAN "UNCLES"

Fewer rich men are leaving money to relatives in Europe and the proverbial "rich uncle in America," who leaves a fortune to his people back at home in the old country, is not so common now as he used to be. The head of the department of the foreign office at Stockholm, Sweden, who deals with Swedish heirs to money of persons dying abroad, has revealed how times have changed. He says that the amounts received by heirs are substantially below what they were a few years ago. Last year only about $500,000 was handled by his office in comparison with $1,000,000 the year before. Correspondence regarding legacies from America constitutes about one-fourth of the work of the department. The largest legacy was $250,000. On one occasion, after much correspondence, the relative of a man who died in America was enriched by seven cents.

Hornets of the Sea

"Pocket torpedo boats," fifty-five feet long and a speed of forty knots, are said to have passed the most severe tests of the British navy. A dozen of these midgets cost less to build than a single destroyer, yet they are capable of sinking anything from a submarine to a superdreadnaught.

ON A YARD LINE

"Kitty doesn't understand football at all."

"She doesn't?"

"No. Why, the other day, she went to a game and fell in love with one of the coaches."

POINTED QUESTION

"I received a telegram from Fred yesterday. He was hurt in the game."

"What did he say?"

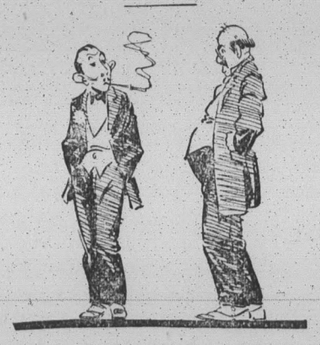
"Nose broken! How do you prefer it set—Greek or Roman?"

ENUMERATION

Mr. Tightwad—How can you accuse me of robbing the children's bank when you have only those infants word that their change is short?

His Wife—They are the little things that count.

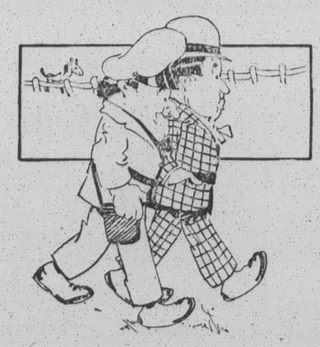
SON KNOWS



Father—I amassed by industry the fortune which you squandered in idleness.

Gilded Youth—Well, that's the rule. Business before pleasure.

NO POLE HOSS



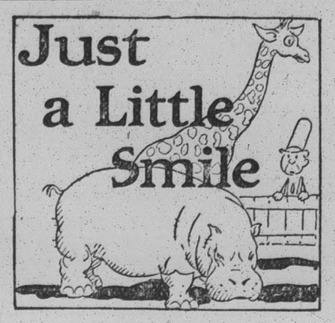
The Tout (at the race track)—I've got a good thing in the fifth race.

The Spectator—You can bet your hat it won't be me.

FORWARD, MARCH

Barhful Lover—I think I'll join the army.

The Girl (significantly)—You certainly need instruction in the use of arms, Tom.



MISUNDERSTOOD

As the ship was about to leave the harbor an old lady was knitting on deck. "Cast off there," shouted an officer.

"Thank you, officer," said the old lady tartly, "but I am quite capable of doing my own knitting."—Ashington Collieries Magazine.

Jacky Knew

The school teacher was taking a class in local geography.

"Now, boys," he said, "can you name any of the chief products of the Midlands?"

"Hardware, sir," said Tommy, as the teacher pointed to him.

"Quite correct," replied the teacher; then, turning sharply to a boy in the front row, he said: "What is hardware, Jack?"

"Corduroy trousers, sir."—London Tit-Bits.

Oysters

Ruthie's big sister was in the hospital for a serious operation. The doctor reported that he found a place in her stomach that was covered with ulcers.

The next day a neighbor asked Ruthie how her sister was.

"Oh!" she replied airily, "the doctor found a whole bunch of oysters in her stomach." — Indianapolis News.

Golf Course Chat

Two golfers, excellent friends, who, like so many players, enjoyed spoofing each other about their play, had just completed the course.

"Jerry," remarked one of them, "you really should have a man to follow you around and replace the turf."

"The same man," replied Jerry, "could make a day of it by following you around and returfing the place."

Wrong Both Ways

The employer was interviewing an applicant for the office boy's job.

"Surely," he said, "you are the boy I saw trying to climb into my orchard."

"Well, yes, sir; but I didn't really get in."

"Then you can go. I have no use for failures in my business."—Stray Stories.

HAD THE "GOODS" ON SMITH

"As I thought, Smith is flirting, not fishing."

"Where do you get that?"

"From his letters. He mentions nothing but a girl named Tuna."

Business Is Business

"Yassah," said old Link, "business very good. Done bought a pig fo' ten dollars, traded pig fo' a barrer, barrer fo' a calf, calf fo' a bicycle, and sol' de bicycle fo' ten dollars."

"But yo' don't make nothing, Link!"

"Sho' 'nough, but look at de business Ah been doin'."—Toronto Globe.

A Prudent Suggestion

"Many people have suffered embarrassment because of their social aspirations."

"Yes," answered Miss Cayenne. "Before you insist on getting into the swim you want to make quite sure you are a swimmer.

Financial Note

"I notice by a Wall Street item that the bulls have stopped fighting the bears."

"Yes, they both have all they can do, fighting the wolf at the door."

Playing Safe

Mother—As soon as you're asleep the angels will come into your room to guard you.

Betty—Oh! well, take my chocolates off the dressing table and put them under my pillow, please!

BLOUSE SERVING DOUBLE PURPOSE

Patterns 9132 and 9133

One of the most pleasant things about the returning vogue of the suit is that blouses are again high style. Women who pride themselves upon the ability to make a limited budget go a long way love their blouses. Think of the same suit, for instance, with the two different blouses sketched today. Pattern 9133 is a simple affair of tailored lines with pleats that flare out at the bottom in a chic little peplum effect. Pattern 9132 has its becoming surplice accentuated by a graceful frill.

Pattern 9132 may be ordered only in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38.

40, 42 and 44. Size 36 requires 2¼ yards 39 inch fabric.

Pattern 9133 may be ordered only in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 requires 2⅛ yards 39 inch fabric.

Complete, diagrammed sew chart included.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, the STYLE NUMBER and SIZE.

Send your order to Sewing Circle Pattern Department, 232 West Eighteenth Street, New York.

PRIVILEGED DISCOURTESY

"Senatorial courtesy is not what it used to be."

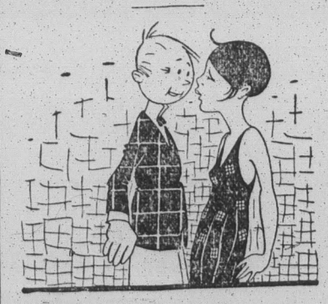
"Perhaps not at present," answered Senator Sorghum. "We need to get rid of a certain impression that successful discourtesy is an evidence of superior influence."

Paris and Bust

"Darling, have you made all arrangements for our elopement?"

"Yes, my love. We take the Zeppelin to South America, get married in Rio, announce our marriage from New York, ask for forgiveness in Cherbourg, and wire from Paris for the return fare home."—Frankfurter Illustriete.

IN THE SAME BOAT



He—You don't know how nervous I was when I proposed to you.

She—And you don't know how nervous I was until you did so.

The Exception

The Wife—Of course women have more patience and endurance than men.

Mr. Peewee—Not always. The cook has left because she wouldn't be bossed by a woman, and I've been married to you 12 years.

A Gift for Santa

By Frances Grinstead

"FELICIA, I forgot to bring anything for your Uncle Hurry!" Father, mother, and daughter-halfway-through-high-school were in a huddle in the pantry, with the kid brother Ripley ("Rip" for short) hovering curiously beyond the door.

"He won't care, Dad." The pretty brunette girl relieved her father of his bundles. "With his radio act going over in a big way he can buy anything he likes. I hope he remembers a wrist watch with a little diamond is nicer than a wrist watch with none."

"Whatever he gives you, Felicia, act as if it's what you want most," her mother warned. "Horrigan would rather be appreciated than anything else in the world. He knows I like pretty negligees. I let him know how I enjoy his presents."

"I was trying to land that contract with Davidson," the father explained. "and I spent most of the evening with him at the McAlpin. When I left there was barely an hour to shop. I didn't dare take a late train, knowing we still had to decorate."

"Did you get the new ornaments?" Mother was pulling at a knobby package.

"Here, don't bother that. It's this one." Father tried to take off his muffler while watching the parcels, with eight-year-old Rip calling, "Aren't you even going to say 'Hello,' Dad?"

"Sure, son! I was helping Santa with his pack, that's all."

"Santa, hmph! Did you get my bicyle?"

"We'll see! We'll see!" As he went upstairs, trailed by boyish impatience, the words floated back, "I simply forgot Hurry. There'd have been time if I'd—"

"Felicia can go to the haberdasher's right here," his wife solved the matter. "The important thing is to get the tree finished and the gifts spread under it before Hurry comes. He always admires my tree. Felicia, buy him one gift from your father and me, and one from you and your brother."

His Arms Were Full of Holly-Papered Parcels.

"What would Uncle Hurry like, mother?"

"M-mm. He has everything he needs, and he never mentions anything he wants. Ask the clerk to suggest something."

The silver star was aglow, the last fat Santa Claus clinging to a limb, Felicia's purchases had been hastily wrapped in golden and green tissue, when the door burst open admitting Horrigan Carter of "Hurry and Haste" radio comedy team. His arms were full of red, green, and holly-papered parcels, and behind him came the cheery chauffeur, his arms full, too.

"Drop 'em, James my lad. Now hurry to that girl of yours and make hay while the snow falls. Come for me at eleven. Here, don't you need a little extra? It's Christmas." Uncle Hurry put a bill in the man's hand and clapped the door shut.

"Felicia, what a lovely tree! You always have something original, Sophia. Henry, how's business? And," (looking around) "where's Rip?"

"Ri-i-ipley!" called Felicia, flinging open the dining room door.

In the midst of discarded outer wrappings, a red-faced small boy was struggling with tissue and ribbons.

"Aw, gee, F'lice, I wanted to tie it myself. Aw, gee! Why'd you have to go open the door? I spent all the money I earned cuttin' lawns last summer and shovelin' snow this week, an'— Aw, gee, it's a fine gift. If I could get it fixed, it would look swell."

Uncle Hurry jumped to close the door "Go ahead, old fellow. We won't look."

"It's no use. Everybody's saw." Rip came toward them with the gift protruding from its wrappings. It was a salad bowl with a wooden mixing spoon.

"Who's it for, Ripley?" mother asked.

"Uncle Hurry!"

Felicia began to laugh. "What a gift for Uncle Hurry! Why, Rip, you give salad bowls to ladies, not men."

Rip looked disconsolate. "He said he wanted it. We were passing that shop where they sell old things and he said—you did, Uncle Hurry, you said 'Jove what a quaint salad bowl! I'd like that.'"

"Of course I did. Next day when I went to buy it for my kitchenette they said it had been put aside for someone. It's great to get it this way!"

"I guess even Santa Claus would rather what he wanted was given to him than to buy it for himself," said Rip wisely.
